

Geocaching
Urban nature walk at Landschaftspark Herzberge

Invitation 1

Something small becomes big

Find something small in your surroundings (a leaf, a piece of bark, a stone, moss, a flower, a seed...). Come closer to it. Observe for at least one minute. What did you notice that you hadn't noticed a few seconds before? Have you even noticed those details on this being before? Try to observe the structures, patterns, and movements on this object. Let your imagination run wild. Take your time. Now start looking around this being as well. Imagine a story about what role this object might play in his mini-ecosystem. Let you the time. After giving free rein to your creativity, you can slowly begin to expand your field of vision more and more, until you return to the world of larger dimensions.

KulturNest e.V.

Placing Nature at the Centre of Culture in Europe

KulturNest e.V. is a Berlin-based non-profit organisation that believes in the power of bottom-up initiatives, creativity and civic participation to create meaningful social change. We design and facilitate learner-centred, non-formal educational experiences that connect people with one another, with nature and with their own capacity to shape the world around them. Our interdisciplinary team of artists, forest therapists, facilitators, youth workers and other practitioners works collaboratively with communities to create empowering spaces for learning, co-creation, wellbeing and social connection.